IV. Read the following and write a summary of it.

Games and sports are a necessary part of our life. They are to the body as education is to the mind. Those who have not played any games in life consider their education incomplete. Gandhiji greatly lamented for not having given proper attention to games during his formative years.

Games provide us relaxation and entertainment. They instil into our minds the spirit of healthy competition, discipline, sportsmanship and team-spirit. Moreover games make our minds fresh and strong. A book-worm who studies day and night gets his mental faculties blunted.

It must however be admitted that remaining busy in games all the time at the cost of studies is by no means something wise. The wisest thing is to keep a healthy balance between the games and the studies. In any case games are indispensable for all round development of one's personality.
